Pembroke North ~ Chronology

The cliffs of North Pembrokeshire escaped the attention of climbers (other than a brief visit by A W Andrews in the 1900s) until the arrival of Colin Mortlock in the mid 1960s. The first recorded routes were the work of Mortlock and Barry Webb, initially in the areas of St David's Head and Pencarnen in the Porstinian area. Most of these were in the lower grades but Morfan and Barad (both E1) were very bold efforts for their time.

- 1966 April Barad SDE B Webb, C Baker
- 1966 Sept 20 Narrow Zawn Slab PS C Mortlock, B Webb, B Webb
Previously called Recessed Slab, this name now being applied to one of the Pencarnen cliffs.
- 1966 Corner Slab Route SDE B Webb, K Webb
Originally called Trwn Llywd Slab, and thus defined the crag.

- 1966 Lichen Slab PS C Mortlock, B Webb
- 1966 Right Crack PS C Mortlock, B Webb
- 1967 saw the addition of more new routes at St David's Head, the initial development of Porthclais by Mortlock and Webb, and the exploration on the west side of Ramsey Island by Mortlock and Sam Cooke. The climbing on Ramsey has since been restricted owing to the importance of the site for cliff nesting birds and grey seals, but the lines climbed were big impressive adventure routes.

Pembroke North ~ Chronology

Pat Littlejohn and Gus Morton rediscovered the huge cliffs at Penbwchdy in 1974 after Mortlock had dismissed them as too vegetated. Together with Keith Darbyshire they put up a number of serious routes. In the later part of the 70s the new route count increased significantly in many areas.

In the way typical of CC guidebook-writing the imminent publication of the guidebook leads to a final flurry of new routing, this time by Crocker and Harwood.

- 1995 July 29 Suzie's Plot TFS M Crocker, J Harwood
 1995 July 30 Blackout AMR M Crocker, J Harwood

 1995 July 30 Yo Ho Ho AMR DWS M Crocker
 1995 July 30 Anon AMR DWS M Crocker

The 1996 guidebook is closed with Harwood commenting 'There are still excellent climbs to be added and it just needs explorers with initiative to do that business. The attitude of current climbers is critical for the North Coast of Pembroke is no sport climbing area' – given the next recorded ascents in this chronology not quite accurate.
